"SPECIALITE" LIME JUICE,

REQUIRES NO SUGAR,
IS COMBINABLE WITH CLARET, &c.,
EFFERVESCING WITH ÆRATED WATER

THIS NEW preparation is made from pure juice of the Lime-fruit, and superior to other preparations of its kind reason of THREE very important FA viz., it is without the usual objectionable MUSTY FLAVOUR; it is FREE from SULPHURIC ACID; it will keep any time SOUND and BRIGHT in all climates AFTER it is UNCORKED.

From Dr. W. DOMETT-STONE, M.D., F.R.C.S.

During the considerable period I devoted my attention to the prevention of Scurvy in the Mercantile Navy, I had numerous samples of Lime Juice brought under my notice, not one of which, I unhesitatingly affirm, could be compared either in appearance, flavour or purity to the bottle of Feltoe's "Specialite" Lime Juice I received a few days since.

Per dozen quart bottles, Rs. 18.

THE sudden death, on the 13th instant, of Lieutenant-Colonel J. L. Loch, Officiating Commissioner of the Nagpore division, is reported. Colonel Loch entered the Army on the 20th of January, 1857, and served with the 2nd Dragoon Guards at the siege and capture of Lucknow in March, 1858, and during the subsequent operations in Oudh.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL E. FAUNCE, Madras Staff Corps, Assistant Adjutant-General, has been appointed Deputy Adjutant-General in Madras in the place of the late Colonel T. Dyer. Major H. R. OWING to the retirement of Colonel T. Biggs who commanded the 1st Battalion Northumberland Fusiliers from October, 1877, it is expected that Lieutenant-Colonel N. Macdonald, at present junior Lieutenant-Colonel of the 2nd Battalion at Agra, will have to proceed to England to succeed to the vacancy. According, however, to the new rule the command of a battalion has to be gazetted. Colonel Macdonald was brought back from pension first to half-pay and then to his old corps on 1st July last under the new warrant. He entered the service in May, 1852.

WHEN General Murray is relieved of the command of the Rohilkund district, his tenure of which expires on the 11th proximo, the whole of the staff of the district will be new to it. The General will be new to it. The Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General, Captain A. J. Pearson, R. A., has only just come from Lucknow, and the Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General will be a new man. Major Boyes is to be succeeded in that post by Captain and Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel G. de C. Morton, of the Warwickshire Regiment, in spite of the fact that he was employed on the staff during nearly the whole of both phases of the late war, and was away from regimental employ from March, 1871, to April, 1877. It is not quite clear how his employment on the staff again so soon comes within the new ruling.

THE Reports of the Revenue and Agricultural Department on the state of the season and prospects of the crops throughout India for the week ending the 11th April are summed up in the following "General Remarks":—Slight rain has fallen in a few districts in the Madras Presidency, in the Mysore State, in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and in Rajputana. In the Bombay Presidency also there has been some rain, notably in the Dharwar district, where scarcity of drinking water had prevailed. The Nizam's Territories report a good fall. In the Punjab and in Bengal some good showers have fallen in several districts ; and in Assam heavy rain has again been registered. Harvest operations continue in parts of the Madras and Bombay Presidencies, as well as in parts of the Central Provinces, Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, and Oudh, and have commenced in one or two districts in the Punjab. Ploughing for early crops has commenced in parts of the Bombay Presidency, in the Central Provinces, and Berar ; and ploughing and sowing are proceeding in parts of Bengal. General prospects may be described as fair in Southern India, except in a few districts of the Madras Presidency, and in the Mysore State, where scarcity of water continues to affect the standing crops. In Bombay the only district (Dharwar) where rain was much wanted has enjoyed the benefit of a good fall of rain. In Northern India prospects are on the whole good ; and although a few districts in Bengal need more rain, the weather is generally seasonable.

IN an article on "The Rajputana Railway negotiations," the Pioneer writes :—It may frankly be confessed that out here prolonged negotiations with the Rothschilds are hardly intelligible, if the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Company is willing, as we hear that it certainly is, to pay a full price for the property in dispute. True, the Government could not close a bargain with that company without in the first instance making sure that it was in a position to pay as well as to promise liberally ; but it is plain on the face of things that the Bombay and Baroda Company can afford to pay a better price for the Rajputana railway than any other purchaser. They are always represented the arrangement by which a large part of the work which, as their name implies, they originally undertook to perform, was taken out of their hands. They are the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Company, but though the name has been kept up, it has been a flagrant misnomer ever since the operations of the company were limited to the construction of the line to Baroda. There might be a good deal of interest in the history of its aspirations and disappointments, and probably the story would be one of unworthy jealousies and selfish motives operating to keep back the development of a great work clearly designed from the first to benefit the public. But we need not go into these details now. At last the time has come when the company has a fair chance of vindicating its raison d'être and of working the system of communications which it originally contemplated as its undertaking. If they have not gone too far to be retraced, the negotiations with Messrs. Rothschild should evidently be suspended, pending the settlement of the only question which really requires to be investigated with regard to the rival offer—the ability of the company to raise the necessary capital.

Good Words for April contains some interesting illustrations of Quebec and its neighbourhood by the Princess Louise. The first of these pictures gives the view from the Governor-General's quarters over the St. Lawrence. The second represents on a larger scale the town and harbour of Quebec as seen from the platform. But the most ambitious and elaborate, as well as the most successful effort of the Princess's pencil is her delineation of Wolfe's Cove, on the shore of which are seen numerous little villages.

IN a paper on "Rational Dress Reform," in the new number of Macmillan's Magazine, Lady Harberton makes the somewhat startling statement that no one sees "anything objectionable in a leg being shown up to the knee in getting into a carriage or crossing a street, provided it is only covered by a stocking, while any more complete covering is thought indecent." This, the St James's Gazette suspects, will be news to many people. We should have thought that, to say the least of it, such a display of stocking as Lady Harberton alludes to would attract considerable attention but even if this be not the case, surely there is a wide difference between the accidental and momentary display of a leg and the adoption of tights as the customary garment for women. Be this as it may, however, the question of indelicacy hardly arises ; and however much observation might be attracted by the first appearance of the 'divided skirt,' there can be no doubt that its general use would very soon disarm any adverse criticism on that head. Lady Harberton advocates the use of a 'lightly draped skirt' over the divided dress, 'reaching to about the knees and allowing the legs to appear slightly,' when, she asserts, 'that being naturally covered, the lines of the wearer's figure would not be ... proportion.' Lady Harberton is an energetic champion of his reform, and with a few kindred spirits would doubtless be able to effect much. The great difficulty at present is to find some one willing to bell the ... of adverse criticism. If this difficulty ... half won."

SOLICITORS' ADDRESS TO THE CHIEF JUSTICE.

THE solicitors' address to Sir M. R. Westropp was presented at his Lordship's chambers yesterday afternoon. There were present Messrs. Jefferson, Craigie, Payne, Allan Turner, Boevey, Walker, Cumrudin Tyebjee, Macfarlane, Thakurdas, Mehta, R. M. Sayani, Frere, Mirza Hoosein Khan, Janardhan Gopal, Nanu Narayen Khotare, Hormusjee Shapurjee Chothia, Kunderao Morojee, Dinshaw Pestonee Kanga, Hormusjee Muncherjee Chichgar, Dayabhoy, Munsookilal Mogutlal Munshi, Brown, and Muljee Bhowanidas.

Mr. H. W. Payne read the address after a few introductory remarks. The address was as follows :—

To the Honourable Sir MICHAEL ROBERTS WESTROPP, Knight, Chief Justice of Bombay.

SIR,—On the eve of your retirement from the highest judicial office in this Presidency, we ask your permission to present this address to you.

We feel that it is not our province to refer at any length to the manner in which you have discharged the duties of the office which you are about to vacate.

In addition to the expressly judicial functions of your office, you have, as Chief Justice, had many other important duties connected with legislation and the general administration of the law to perform ; but your fame hereafter will rest, as you will doubtless be content that it should, upon your reputation as a judge; and the records of your judgments form the ample materials from which your place amongst the judges who have sat upon the Indian Bench will be ascertained.

We trust, however, that we shall not be deemed to be trenching beyond the proper limits of a respectful address when we say that throughout the period during which you have been Chief Justice the knowledge that the High Court of Bombay was presided over by you has inspired us with a feeling of confidence that in every appeal to that tribunal, not only would the law receive a just and competent interpretation, but that likewise the supremacy of the law over all other powers would ever be firmly and unfailingly maintained.

We tender to you our most respectful thanks for the care with which you have invariably protected the true interests of that branch of the profession of the law to which we belong, and for the courtesy with which you have on all occasions received every representation made by us concerning our profession.

We trust that you may soon be completely restored to health, that you may live for many years to come, and that, unless your services should be demanded in a still higher tribunal than that from which you are now retiring, you may enjoy the repose to which a long, an honourable, and an honoured career in this country has entitled you.

We beg you to believe, Sir, that when leaving India you will carry with you the earnest good wishes of each one of us, combined with our sincere respect.

We are, Sir, your obedient servants.

Sir M. R. Westropp said he wished to return his best thanks for the extremely kind manner in which his services had been noticed. So long as he had been Judge and Chief Justice of Bombay, and indeed since he first came to Bombay, the profession of solicitors had greatly altered, individually and generally, but he was still able to recognise some well-known faces of those who were solicitors when he arrived in this city. It was to him a subject of the greatest pleasure to believe that the solicitors, who were such able members of what ought to be a learned profession, had presented him with such a mark of their esteem, and it would be a solace to him during the years of rust, upon which he would now probably encounter, to reflect that the profession would continue to be what it had always been in Bombay—a high and honourable body—and that they would, as they had heretofore done, take the most stringent measures to purge it of aught that a body of honourable gentleman would wish to see removed. They had always, he thought, found the court ready to support them in any proceedings which affected the honour of the profession, and he had not the least doubt that his successor and his colleagues would continue to do the same. He was well aware that the solicitors of the High Court had arduous duties to perform, and it was difficult to control those large establishments without which it was impossible to carry on business in Bombay ; still he had always observed that the solicitors used their utmost endeavours to keep their establishments honourably conducted. He was one of those who thought it for the benefit of the public that the profession should be kept separate, and he had resisted the suggestion of an amalgamation. He did not desire to see liberty of criticism lessened, nor pleaders placed too much under the thumb of the court. It was, no doubt, in the power of Government to introduce such a measure into a Presidency, but he trusted any measure having such a endency would be successfully resisted. He would now say farewell, and he trusted they would all prosper in their profession, and that those who succeeded them would be as honourable and excellent men as those he saw around him.

PRESENTATION OF AN ADDRESS TO H. H. THE RAO OF KUTCH.

LAST evening at the "Durria Mahal," Malabar Hill, the temporary residence of His Highness the Rao of Kutch, a large party of leading European and native citizens met on the occasion of the presentation of an address of congratulation to the Rao on the part of the Kutchee residents of Bombay. About fifteen hundred invitations had been issued, one-third the number being for European ladies and gentlemen. The Palace by the Sea, which is the signification of the name of the bungalow, and its extensive garden grounds were brilliantly illuminated, as they were at the evening entertainment given on Saturday last,—six electric lights (Brush system) diffusing a mellow lustre all over the place and its surroundings, while many hundreds of tumbler-lights played a minor part where they had been placed over the iron railings of the compound, the outer cornices of the bungalow, and along the gravel walks in lines, angles, or columns. The guests, as they arrived, were received under the spacious porchway by Messrs. Mathooradas Lowjee, Cursondas Vullubhdas, Abdoola Meherali Dhuramsey, and other members of the reception committee, and were conducted to an upper reception hall, where sofas and chairs had been arranged for their accommodation. Captain Wray, Assistant Political Agent, received the European guests at the head of the staircase. His Highness, with his younger brother Kaloobhoy, a lad of bright, intelligent looks, who seemed to derive much gratification from the spectacle around him, was seated on a richly-gilt sofa at one end of the hall, attended by a number of personal servants who stood behind them. The committee had appropriately invested some portion of their funds in large and small garlands, bouquets, wristlets, and nosegays of the choicest flowers in season ; and these were freely distributed among His Highness' party and the numerous guests, accompanied with the subsidiary ceremony of sprinkling attar and rosewater over the flowers. A native band played in the verandah on the ground floor, and two companies of dancing-girls danced and sang in different rooms of the building. Among those present on the occasion were Sir Charles Sargent, Sir Frank Souter, Kt., C.S.I., Mr. Justice, Mrs. and Miss Kemball, Mr. Justice Melvill, General Hewett, Sheriff of Bombay, Dr. and Mrs. Blanc, Mr. and Mrs. Forjett, Mr. and Mrs. Ollivant, Mr. and Mrs. Gratan Geary, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Russell, Dr. and Miss Blaney, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Kemp, Colonel and Mrs. White, Colonel Hancock, Dr. Hojel, Mrs. Morland, Mrs. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Cornforth, Miss Gamble, Mrs. Portman, Mrs. Allen, Messrs. J. Macfarlane, Rienzi Walton, A. F. Turner, F. Jefferson, H. W. Barrow, Farnham, Saunders, Forrest, P. Ryan, D'Aguiar, Thorburn, Sedgewick, Surgeon-Major Weir, Messrs. L. W. Rivett-Carnac, Little, Boevey, A. Sayani, Hormusjee Sorabjee, Babajee Kassinath, Gungadas Keshordas, Ramchunder Hemraj, Dinanath R. Khote, Dhurumsey Soonderdas Mooljee, etc.

When everything was ready, Mr. Cursondas Vullubhdas, joint secretary to the reception committee, stepped forward and read the following address to the Rao :—

TO HIS HIGHNESS MAHARAJADHIRAJ MIRZA MAHA RAO SHRI KHENGARJI BAHADUR, Maharaja of Cutch.

May it please Your Highness.—It affords much pleasure to all your Highness' subjects in Bombay to welcome your Highness to this great city, and to express the satisfaction afforded them by your Highness' visit, undertaken with a view to travel and to complete, by measure, the full edification received by your Highness. They accordingly crave permission to approach your Highness with this expression of their loyalty and attachment to your Highness' Throne.

You Highness' grandfather, Maharao Desulji, was eighteen years of age when the British Government handed over to him the reins of power. Such was the admirable tact and judgment with which he applied himself to the early duties of the wants of his subjects from that early age that in a short time he won their hearts. The feelings of affectionate regard and devotion entertained towards him by the people have continued undiminished towards his successors to this day.

3. The successful and prosperous rule of your Highness' revered father,—the late lamented Rao Sir Pragmalji,—extending over a period of sixteen years, tended still further to cement the bonds of attachment and love of your subjects to the Throne of Cutch.

4. It is a source of much satisfaction to your subjects to learn that the scheme of your Highness' liberal education, sketched out in pursuance of the advice of the British Government, by Dewan Rao Bahadur Manibhai Jusbhai, has had the result of imparting to your Highness the benefits of a sound education, and they now trust that, under the guidance of so able and experienced a political officer as Colonel G. R. Goodfellow, and with the assistance of Dewan Rao Bahadur Nandashankar Tuljashankar, your Highness will be enabled to acquire that insight into the details of practical administration which is so necessary to qualify you for the responsible work of government, while, at the same time, making further progress in general education under the direction of Captain Wray as "guide, friend, and philosopher," and under the care of Mr. Chotalal Sevakram, your Highness' immediate tutor.

5. It was seven years ago that your Highness was installed on the gadi of Cutch. Owing to your Highness' minority, the affairs of the State were conducted in a satisfactory manner by your Dewan Rao Bahadur Mani-shhai, who, during his tenure of office, introduced many reforms into the State. Your subjects take this opportunity of bringing this fact humbly and respectfully to the notice of your Highness.

6. Your Highness' fifteenth ancestor, Rao Khengarji, when only a youth, visited Ahmedabad, where, in a hunting excursion arranged for by Sultan Mahomed Begurra, the then Emperor of Gujrat, he distinguished himself by slaying with his own hand a lion in the presence of the Emperor. This act of personal bravery attracted the Emperor's notice, and procured for Khengarji the title of Maharao. With the aid of a contingent of troops from the Emperor, Rao Khengarji made other conquests and established his capital and the splendour of his court at Bhuj.

7. After the first Maharao Khengarji, your Highness is the third Rao who bears that historic name on the roll of the sovereigns of Cutch, and it is pleasing to us to see that having received a good education at home, our Highness desires to complete it by travelling abroad. Peace reigns over India under the benign sway of the Paramount British Government. Its triumphs consist in the promotion of the comfort and happiness of Her Majesty's subjects. It is earnestly hoped by your Highness' subjects that, on coming to power, it will be your Highness' constant end and aim to use, to the best of your ability, the facilities and advantages afforded you in promoting the welfare and happiness of your people.

8. Your Highness' subjects have for centuries past travelled far and wide, by sea and land, for purposes of trade to Arabia, Baluchistan, the Malayan Coast, Java, Batavia, Africa and other places, and yet they have never lost their love for their own country and never sojourned permanently in foreign lands. This is pre-eminently due to that wise policy of your Highness' ancestors which permits enterprising natives of Cutch to enjoy at home, in undisturbed repose and in fulness of enjoyment, their hard-earned savings and accumulations made in foreign climes.

9. In this great emporium of commerce your Highness will witness evidences of the greatness and power of the British Government in the progress in arts and trade, of improvements in the system of government, and of the freedom and happiness enjoyed by the people, &c., &c. Your Highness' subjects hope that the good impression which your Highness may thus be able to carry away will be of lasting use to your Highness hereafter in giving your subjects the benefit of what your Highness sees and deems worthy of adoption in your own State.

10. The liberal education which your Highness has received fills your subjects with hope that your Highness has become conscious of the duties and obligations incidental to kingly power, whether as regards the protection of life and property of your subjects, the treatment of your Bhayads, the relations which should subsist between your Highness and the British Government, the management and collection of revenue, or the need of employing honest, trained native agency in the State, &c. &c. They trust that the Almighty Providence will give your Highness strength and capacity to enable you to fulfil the just and reasonable hopes of your subjects in these and other respects.

11. Your Highness' subjects are, however, precluded from enlarging on this subject, your Highness not having been as yet invested with power.

12. From several indications afforded them, your Highness' subjects are led to form great expectations from your Highness' future career, and to believe that it will be as bright and prosperous as that of any of your Highness' illustrious predecessors.

13. Your Highness' subjects are indebted to the native rulers of Cutch for works of public improvement carried out in the State. Any commendation bestowed on them would be out of place here, and yet they feel they cannot well allow this opportunity to pass without expressing, however inadequately, their sense of gratefulness for the numerous blessings they have had the privilege to enjoy under the benign sway of the Raos of Cutch.

14. May the protecting hand of the Most High and the blessings of your numerous subjects attend your Highness wherever you go is the fervent prayer of

Your Highness' most loyal and obedient subjects.

Bombay, 19th April, 1882.

His Highness the Rao made the following reply to the address :—

GENTLEMEN.—I thank you heartily for the very kind sentiments contained in your address, and need hardly say that it is very gratifying to me to hear from you such an expression of your high appreciation of the good Government by my ancestors of our common country. It is also with pleasure that I hear the expression of your satisfaction with the conduct of the administration under the Divanship of Rao Bahadur Manibhai Jasbhai selected as he was for his high post by my late revered father. I sincerely thank you for the expression of your affection towards me and your kind wishes for my welfare, which I shall always endeavour to deserve. One of our most venerated sages has said :—

"Certainly kingship consists in delighting and protecting the subjects," and I hope that it may be my lot to live to attain to this ideal standard, and in so doing to follow the noble example of our Gracious Sovereign, the Queen-Empress of India. The success, however, of a ruler's efforts for his people depends in great measure upon the people themselves. In order that a sovereign should succeed in his endeavours to benefit his people it is requisite that the people themselves should be peaceful, law-abiding, and loyal to their sovereign ; and I feel much encouragement from the many evidences before me of your hearty loyalty to your sovereigns and your attachment to your native country, in anticipation of that future when I shall be called upon to assume the duties of a ruler over a people so loyal and so appreciative of any efforts for its welfare. There are other circumstances which may well cause me to look forward with hopeful anticipation to the future. The British Government has been invariably well-disposed and friendly towards the State of Kach, and it is my good fortune to enjoy the kindly personal friendship of His Excellency the Governor of Bombay. And in speaking of the future I should be wanting in gratitude were I not to express my feeling of indebtedness to the Government of Bombay for the present excellent arrangements which have been made for my education, and I agree with you that the advice and society of such a worthy gentleman as Col. Goodfellow must tend to greatly benefit me in my preparation for the important duties connected with the administration of my country which will hereafter devolve upon me. With this end in view I hope to continue my general studies under the superintendence of my friend Captain Wray, of whom I may say that he spares himself no exertion on my behalf. Also as regards my proper education for my future duties I must not here fail to express my affectionate gratitude to my good mother for all her care and watchfulness. I would also desire to express my acknowledgment to Mr. Chotalal Sevakram for services rendered to me as my tutor. It is with pride and satisfaction that I hear of the industry and enterprise which induce the natives of Kach to carry on their commerce in the most distant parts. I trust that their example and public enterprise may be always well maintained, and that their prosperity in the future may never be less than that which, I am pleased to hear, has been attained in the past. I am much visited in every direction of this city with much pleasure. I need hardly say that any movement, on the part of my subjects who have so large a share in the industry and commerce of this great city, towards the development of the resources and fostering the industries of their native country would be welcomed by me. Gentlemen—You have put yourselves to much trouble and expense and have given me a most gratifying reception, far exceeding anything I had anticipated, and I offer you my best and most sincere thanks for the same. I assure you that I shall always remember with pleasure my present visit to Bombay.

Rana Jalumsinjee read a Gujeratee translation of the reply. The numerous party then adjourned to the spacious verandah on the terrace at the back of the building to witness the fireworks provided for the occasion. The refreshment which had been provided for the guests were duly appreciated on a close evening in the hot season. The party broke up about midnight. The fire-works were witnessed not only by the guests in the upper rooms, but also by many hundreds of natives who had collected on the spacious grounds at the back of the bungalow in the public roads, and on the grounds of the neighbouring bungalows. Some of them had come on foot from distant parts of the city. The passenger traffic by public horse and bullock conveyances was immense ; and the roads at different points were blocked by long lines of carriages.

HIS HIGHNESS THE RAO leaves Bombay by the mail-train at 2 o'clock to-morrow (Friday) afternoon.

INSTALLATION OF H. H. AGA SHAHBUDIN SHAH.

FOR the past three or four days there has been a stir amongst the Khoja community. Aga Shahbudin Shah, son of Aga Ali Shah, has been nominated pir of the Khojas at the Jamat Khana. It seems that, according to the custom prevalent amongst the Khojas, there must be an Emam at the head of the community. This Emam nominates a pir, who in his turn becomes Emam on the death of his predecessor. Aga Khan was the first Emam of the Khojas. On his death his son Aga Ali Shah, then pir, was elected second Emam. Yesterday evening there was a great festivity among the Khojah community. At about 2 p.m. a large number of the Khojah community assembled at the residence of His Highness at Love-lane, and thence proceeded in a procession to the Khojah Jamatkhana, where also a large number of Khojahs had assembled to receive His Highness, and where the installation ceremony was performed. On His Highness taking his seat congratulations were tendered by all present, and the party retired for a time to their respective homes. Later in the evening the Khojah Jamatkhana was brilliantly illuminated and a grand display of fireworks took place. The residence of His Highness at Love-lane was also illuminated for the occasion. To-night a grand dinner will be given to all the members of the Khojah community at the Khoja Jamatkhana, and another display of fireworks will take place at the residence of His Highness.

BANK OF BOMBAY.

A SPECIAL meeting of the proprietors and shareholders of the bank was held yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of electing an auditor in the place of the late Mr. H. R. Cormack. Mr. J. G. Smith presided, and there were about twenty five shareholders present.

The notice convening the meeting having been read,

The Chairman said that when the directors sent the advertisement to the papers, they hoped that Mr. Cormack would be able to return to Bombay and resume his duties as auditor of the bank ; but it was with the greatest regret that the directors heard of Mr. Cormack's death. Mr. Cormack was a model auditor, who entirely understood his duties. Those who came in contact with him liked him. The directors had already expressed their regret by recording a resolution expressive of their sense of the loss which the bank had sustained. It was their business now to elect an auditor in the place of Mr. Cormack.

Mr. Cleveland said that he had been requested to propose the name of Mr. N. S. Symons as an auditor of the bank. He had known Mr. Symons for a great number of years, and he (Mr. Symons) was also well known to the shareholders. He originally belonged to the house of Messrs. W. & J. Graham and Company. Mr. Symons had been brought up as a commercial man all his life ; and, so far as he (Mr. Cleveland) knew, he was a painstaking, industrious, and shrewd man, and would make an admirable auditor. Some objection had been taken on the ground of Mr. Symons being an exchange broker ; but that was no reason why he should not be elected.

Mr. Nowrojee Manockjee Wadia seconded the proposition.

Mr. Cumrudin Tyebjee proposed an amendment, to the effect that Mr. David Watson should be elected an auditor in the room of Mr. Cormack. He said they were all aware of the position which Mr. Watson occupied. He had been connected with Bombay for a number of years, and was well known to most of those who were present at the meeting on a former occasion. He occupied the post of chairman of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, and he was now secretary of that body. Mr. Watson was also connected with the Under-writers' Association. By his position and experience, he was a fit and proper person to be elected an auditor of the bank—a responsible post which required constant attendance.

Mr. Vizbookhandas Atmaram seconded the amendment.

The amendment being put to the vote, was lost and the original proposition, that Mr. N. S. Symons should be elected an auditor of the bank at a remuneration of Rs. 750, was declared on a show of hands to be carried.

Mr. Vizbookhandas Atmaram demanded a poll.

The Chairman said that according to the rules a requisition should be signed by five of the proprietors of the bank, before a poll could be granted.

As there was not found the required number to sign the requisition in the present case, the Chairman declared that Mr. N. S. Symons was elected auditor of the bank.

The meeting then dispersed.

Queen from assassination. Objections, however, existed to this, and the Raja has sent a donation of six hundred rupees to be distributed among the poor at Lahore as a thank-offering on his part for her Majesty's escape.—Civil and Military Gazette.

SIMLA MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.—The agitation at Simla, which last year was the subject of frequent notice in these columns, cannot be said to have died out. A "Municipal Reform meeting" is to be held at "Benmore" on the 20th instant, to decide the the further action to be taken towards effecting reform in the municipal administration of Simla.—Civil and Military Gazette.

THE ALLAHABAD SECRETARIAT.—The North-West Government, we understand, has been anxious to secure sanction for the appointment of a third Secretary in addition to those concerned with the general work of the North-West Provinces and Oudh. The third secretary would be employed on financial business especially—a department of the local Government which will expand under the influence of the decentralisation system. There is no doubt a practical convenience to be secured by having as many officers of the secretariat as possible qualified by their official status to communicate direct with the Lieutenant-Governor. An extra secretary is thus more useful than the same man would be as assistant secretary, in which capacity his work must all pass through the hands of his immediate superior. However, we understand that the question is hung up for the present, and probably the Government of India prefer to wait now before deciding upon it till Sir Alfred Lyall's views on the subject can be ascertained.—Pioneer.

THE MAHA PURUSH IN CALCUTTA FIFTY YEARS AGO.

ABOUT fifty years ago there was great excitement throughout Calcutta and the suburbs in consequence of the sudden advent of a supposed supernatural being in the shape of a man, and designated and worshipped by the natives as Maha Purush, the mighty man, or great saint, probably the same as Colonel Olcott alluded to in his lecture as the SadAu. All classes of natives, Muhammadans and Hindus, alike thronged in thousands daily to adore this being, of whom such wonders were told that numbers of the European community were attracted to the place where he was exhibited to the public. It was given out that he was discovered in the depths of the Sonderbun jungles by some wood cutters who brought him to Calcutta. They found him in an absolutely nude condition, in which he was all along presented to general view. He kept his eyes closed at all times, never spoke or uttered a sound, and seemed not to hear, and neither required nor asked for food and drink in any shape. His bodily functions appeared to be in a state of total suspension, and but for respiration and having a pulse he might have passed off for a human corpse. At first he was kept in an obscure place somewhere in Kidderpur, but his supernatural fame spread wider daily, and there was something like a competition amongst certain big babus to appropriate the holy saint, but the day was carried by the then Rajah, head of the Ghosal family in Bhooee Koylas, which is a short distance to the south of Kiederpore. Here Maha Purush was exhibited in an open verandah of a two storied house. He was placed on a common old breakfast table in a recumbent posture with his back to the wall and his legs drawn up. He was now surrounded by a mob of worshipping Brahmins, and from daylight to dusk offerings of flowers and fruits were made, and garlands of flowers and pieces of cloth were brought to receive the touch of the saint's passive person, and carried away in triumph by the owners to be used as charms for healing the sick or securing good luck. Of course pice were taken at the door for admission by somebody, though the Raja always denied authorising such a charge. The crush of the multitude outside was unceasing, though the exhibition lasted for months, and it was all that a strong police force could do to prevent accidents and disturbances. It was universally believed by natives that this wonderful being really lived and breathed without any kind of sustenance. Of course, this did not go down with Europeans, many of whom, while satisfied in their own minds that the whole thing was an imposture, yet felt a desire to demonstrate to the natives that it was so, and thereby disabuse their minds of the delusion under which they laboured. Foremost amongst these was Dr. John Grant, Superintendent of the Government Medical Stores, Professor (since Sir) William O'Shaugnessy, the Rev. Mr. Lacroix of the London Missionary Society, and the Rev. Mr. (Dr.) Alexander Duff, then a very young man just arrived in the country. They experimented on the sensitiveness of his skin, and tried other ways to make him betray that he had the feelings of flesh and blood; but his powers of self-command and endurance defied the doctors, who of course were restrained from having recourse to any thing of a violent nature. In all that was actually tried, the most that Maha Purush showed was a slight quivering of his closed eye lids. On two occasions only he showed ordinary susceptibility, once when a little carbonate of ammonia was stuffed into his nostrils, and another time, on being subjected to galvanic shocks, he rolled down from his usual posture on the table. The Brahmins tried to explain all this away, and his million votaries were satisfied. The newspapers got up a discussion regarding this marvellous being, the European portion trying to expose the imposition, and the native press heartily abusing the missionaries and the doctors. All this went on for a considerable time, when days, sometimes a few and sometimes many, began to intervene during which Maha Purush was not to be seen, because, as it was given out, his saintship did not will it. These breaks in the exhibition began to grow more and more frequent and last longer, and this began to give rise to suspicion and sinister reports; till the rumour was generally believed that the saint had fallen into bad company and taken to the bottle. Not long he parted from his late patrons and tried to set up a shrine in one or two other places, but without much success, and the last heard of him was that he died drunk in a hut to the south of the race-course, though according to another account, he met his death by drowning. It afterwards turned out that this Maha Purush was a Christian of the name of Vardousle, a member of a respectable East Indian family, who had separated himself from his friends and had not been heard of for years, till he turned up in the manner stated, as a Sadhu.—Englishman.

A MUSICAL EXPERIMENT.

AN interesting trial of a new musical instrument took place recently in the Speech-room of Harrow school, before a numerous audience, comprising many old pupils of Harrow and other distinguished persons. The name of Mr. Baillie Hamilton, the inventor of the instrument in question, has long been known in connexion with practical acoustics. As long ago as January, 1875, he read before the Musical Association a thoughtful paper on the application of wind to string instruments, in which he explained and developed the idea, originally invented by Mr. John Farmer, the organist of Harrow School, of effecting the harmonious vibration of strings by means of a current of air instead of striking them with bow, or plectrum, or fingers. Mr. Hamilton's plan of applying this invention to instruments of the organ type has for the present been abandoned, although we believe that Mr. Farmer still hopes to turn his idea to practical account. The principle of the instrument shown yesterday is entirely different from that of the systematised Æolian harp above referred to. It resembles in shape the harmonium, and the means of producing sound are substantially those used in instruments of that class; with a very important modification, however. Mr. Hamilton employs what is technically known as "free reeds," but instead of acting upon them singly, he divides them into groups of three connected by a bridge, which so modifies their individual sounds as to emit a single note of great sonorous beauty and power. To each group of reeds belongs a sounding box or cavity through which the air passes very much as our breath in singing passes through the throat, the intention being to produce a quality of tone resembling the human voice. In this attempt Mr. Hamilton has been remarkably successful by means, it will be seen, entirely different from those employed in the "vox humana" stops of ordinary organs. The timbre of the new invention varies somewhat between the voice and the softer wind instruments such as French horn, clarinet, &c., partaking notes and qualities of both, the beauty of the sustained tone of this, indeed, very remarkable. The chief defect of the instrument—and like most new inventions it has its defects—is its slowness of speech, which makes the execution of rapid passages a matter of extreme difficulty, if not impossibility. This drawback, however, does not appear to be structural, and may, no doubt, be remedied in subsequent specimens. Comparing the new instrument, which, by the way, is still in want of a name with its congeners the organ and the harmonium—and in discussing the usefulness of a new invention comparison becomes a duty—we find that, as a matter of course, it is inferior as regards power and nuance of tone and variety of resource to the former, which is altogether on a different level. On the other hand, it is decidedly superior in all these respects to the ordinary run of harmoniums, and will, no doubt, be a dangerous rival to them, both for the accompaniment of voices and for solo performances, provided always that its mechanism can be improved in the direction pointed out by us.—The Times.

MR. BRADLAUGH'S OATH.

THE PENALTY ENFORCED.

In the Queen's Bench Division on March 30th, before Justice Grove and Baron Huddleston, the case of Clarke v. Bradlaugh, which came before the court as a motion by the plaintiff for judgment, was again before the court. Mr. Bradlaugh, in continuing his argument, which was confined to a question of costs, as he allowed judgment to stand against him at this stage, maintained that common informers were not entitled to costs unless expressly provided by statute, and in this particular case no such authority existed. In support of that contention he quoted several old authorities, including Jacob's "Law Dictionary," and mentioned that the practice was generally confined to former times, when such actions were of more frequent occurrence. —Baron Huddleston suggested that since the Judicature Act the court had a discretion as to costs.—Mr. Bradlaugh urged that the discretion was only of a judicial character, and referred to the cases of Foster and another v. Great Western Railway before the Railway Commissioners, and of Myers and Defries. In the latter case Lord Justice Bramwell had said that the court should look at the law of costs as a guide altogether, because the law was reasonable and ought to be followed whenever practicable. If their lordships gave judgment for the penalty with or without costs, he would ask their lordships to stay execution pending the hearing of the appeal to the House of Lords, and would further submit that the common informer was not entitled to costs prior to 17th May, 1881, because on that day he made a perfectly new record. Their lordships gave judgment for the plaintiff for the amount of the penalty, £500, without a stay of execution, and ordered the money to be paid into court in a fortnight. The question of costs to be reserved pending the decision of the appeal to the House of Lords.

THE WEALTH OF THE GROSVENORS.

IN a corner of the churchyard of St. Margaret's Westminster, over against the Abbey and almost touching the railings that separate the road from the churchyard, stands a single tomb, surrounded by an iron railing. An inscription on this tomb records that under it lies the body of Alexander Davis of Ebury, Middlesex, who died on the 2nd July, 1665.

This Alexander Davis was the real founder of the family and the real source of all the honour, dignities, and fortune of the present Duke of Westminster. He was, as is said, and as his name would seem to indicate, a Jew, besides being an attorney and a money-lender. By discreet advances of cash to needy persons, whose needs had probably become intensified by the disorders of the Civil War, he had become first the mortgagee and finally the possessor of lands in what were then the suburbs of London. There was a farm, still commemorated in Farm-street; a running stream, still recalled by Brook-street; and a Manor House, on the site of which—if indeed it be not the very house itself—was built what is now Bourdon House, on the east side of Davies-street, Berkeley-square. Now Davis had one only daughter and heiress, Mary Davis. She married Sir Thomas Grosvenor, the head and third baronet of the old and honourable family of Grosvenors, who were blessed with little riches though with a long pedigree. Miss Davis's fortune, which gradually began to increase in value, soon made a great difference in the prospects of the family she had endowed with it; and within thirty years of her death her grandson, Sir Richard Grosvenor, was made a Baron in 1761. But the fortune still grew, so twenty years later he was made an Earl. It went on growing, for the farm lands had now become part of London, and the second Earl was created Marquis of Westminster in 1831. The present head of the family—a most excellent and worthy man—proved an excellent steward of the estates, and time proved even a better. A greater rise than ever took place in his time in the value of the rents; he attached himself very strongly to Mr. Gladstone; and in 1874 he was made a Duke.

With regard to the present value of the Duke of Westminster's London property, it is not by any means so great as is commonly imagined. Yet it is very great, and in the course of the next thirty years it will be something enormous. The late Marquis of Westminster, the father of the present Duke, said one day in 1857 to a friend with whom he was walking, "I often amuse myself with reckoning what will be the value of my London property in the future; and I calculate that if things go on as they are going, it will a hundred years hence produce an income of a million a year."—Vanity Fair.

"Accept my sincere thanks for your idea of introducing ZOEDONE in India. I fear I cannot praise it enough. You know that a vast population of Her Majesty's subjects in India are Mahomedans, whose religion prohibits the use of wine or any other intoxicating liquor. Under such circumstances ZOEDONE is a boon and blessing to them. I think it is a health restoring, strengthening and nourishing beverage. From my own experience and from what I have ascertained from Medical men, I can certify that it is strictly non-alcoholic, and the very drink that the Indians generally and the Mussulmans particularly are in need of."
